Senators Map Procedure For Censure Action

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders planned last-minute talks today on procedure for the Senate's special session amid predictions a final vote on whether to censure Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) will come in a week or two.

McCarthy and his staff members meanwhile were reported arranging strategy meetings with senators friendly to his cause. McCarthy has said he plans a detailed presentation of his side of the case for the benefit of the public, but has declined to call it a defense.

The Wisconsin Republican has predicted the Senate will vote to censure him at the session starting Monday, saying only a few members of the 96-man "jury" will go into the proceedings with an open mind.

With the opening date only three days away, Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas flew into Washington Friday night for a Saturday conference with Senate Majority Leader Knowland of California on what order of procedure to follow. Time and place of the meeting were not announced.

One main subject Knowland and Johnson were expected to take up is whether they can set the early target date some senators are asking for a showdown vote on the censure issue.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, told reporters "I personally will be disappointed if (the special session) lasts more than a week." He said the Senate is reconvening to do "one specific thing"—dispose of a special committee's report recommending that McCarthy should be censured on three counts.

Ferguson May Get Court Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—Speculation was still rife today that Sen. Homer Ferguson is under consideration for appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court following the senator's conference Friday with President Eisenhower.

But Ferguson, defeated in his bid for re-election, refused to say whether the chief executive offered to name him to fill the Supreme Court vacancy created by the death of Associate Justice Robert Jackson.

"I can't discuss what we discussed," he told newsmen.

A White House source, who asked not to be named, said later he doubted very much that Ferguson was in line for the appointment. There was reason to believe, however, that the Michigan senator might be named to a lower federal bench. He had had extensive experience in Michigan courts before his election to the Senate in 1942.

Ferguson, however, told newsmen, "I have no plans for the future."

He believes his loss to Patrick V. McNamara in Tuesday's election was due to "a combination of circumstances," including unemployment in Michigan.

Lansing Editor Sued For Libel

LANSING (AP)—A libel suit asking $100,000 in damages has been filed by Frank D. Mc Kay, Grand Rapids financier and political figure, against Edward Nowack of Lansing, publisher of the weekly Capitol Digest.

The suit was filed last Monday in Ingham County Circuit Court. It was suppressed by Judge Louis E. Coash until Friday, when a decision was served on Nowack.

Mc Kay charged in his suit that Nowack published false and untrue articles about him on Dec. 10, 1953, and Feb. 19, 1954 and that he was held up to public shame, disgrace and ridicule.

He charged Nowack "maliciously and with intent to injure him" caused "false and defamatory" articles to be published in his newspaper.

Senate Veterans Say Democrats Will Work Fine With President

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Senate veterans of opposing parties agreed today that President Eisenhower, a Republican, and the new Democratic Congress should be able to work harmoniously the next two years.

Sen. Russell of Georgia, one of several Southern Democrats in line for important committee chairmanships when his party takes over, sounded this theme in discussing prospects for legislation under the new 84th Congress.

Can Improve Record

"Of course there will be some differences," he said in an interview, but the Democrats will give Eisenhower "fair consideration on his legislative proposals even though we may have some of our own to offer."

Sen. Aiken of Vermont, Republican chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee in the last Congress, seemed equally optimistic in telling a reporter:

"We had a pretty good record in the 83rd Congress and I think there's a good chance of improving it in the 84th."

The two legislators spoke after the new post-election harmony wave yesterday had surged forward at least for the time being, on two fronts.

Want No Bickering

In Washington, Eisenhower called congressional leaders of both parties to a Nov. 17 conference on foreign policy. Senate Majority Leader Knowland of California said after a White House conference the President was eager to get on "cordial and constructive" working terms with the Democrats.

In Bonham, Tex., Democratic Leaders Rep. Sam Rayburn and Sen. Lyndon Johnson held a 15-minute meeting in Rayburn's law office. Johnson said afterwards the Democratic program "will be to maintain a united country rather than to have constant bickering among different groups." Rayburn had cooperation "will depend quite a bit" on the administration's attitude—if they want to go along with us the Democratic House will go full force on all measures for the benefit of the country."

Both made it plain, however, that they will oppose the administration where they think necessary and that they don't like what Rayburn said was Republican speechmakers' labeling of the entire Democratic party as "pinks" and "leftwingers."

Rayburn will be speaker of the House when the new Congress organizes in January. Johnson, also a Texan, is slated to succeed Knowland as Senate majority leader.

Boy, 3, Medically Dead In Surgery

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Three-year-old Nicky DeWitt is still alive although he was considered "medically dead" by his physician Wednesday and stopped breathing again Friday morning.

Nicky was bitten on the upper lip Wednesday by a cocker spaniel owned by Willie Pep, former featherweight boxing champion. George Dewitt, Nicky's father, is a nightclub comedian and neighbor of Pep.

The lip was badly torn and Nicky was taken to Victoria Hospital for plastic surgery. He was put under ether and as the operation was completed, the doctors noticed Nicky had stopped breathing.

They opened Nicky's chest cavity and massaged his heart. Nicky began breathing again.

The doctors said the child "rocked along" the rest of the night, and by Thursday seemed to be "coming along," but Friday he stopped breathing again, although a slight heart action continued.

Emergency drug and oxygen treatment didn't start Nicky breathing again and he was rushed to Variety Children's Hospital and placed in an iron lung.

Nicky remained in a critical condition today.

Neighbor Accused Of Attack With Truck After Pitchfork Fails

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Tulsa County farmer Hugo Gabriel claimed his neighbor, Glen Johnson, tried to settle their argument with words, a pitchfork, and when that failed, used a one-ton truck.

Johnson was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon for allegedly running Gabriel down after the dispute over Gabriel's cows wandering onto Johnson's property.

Gabriel said he took the pitchfork away from his neighbor but couldn't cope with the truck. He has a broken arm, cuts and bruises.

Sacred Cattle Are Government Problem In India

By EUGENE LEVIN

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's cattle, sacred and plentiful, have been classified by the Nehru government as an urgent domestic problem.

Politics, religion and economics are all wrapped up in the bovine issue. The problem takes its most dramatic form in the almost daily parades through New Delhi by Sadhus (Hindu holy men), demanding "a national ban on all cow slaughter." Garbed in saffron robes, their hair and beards curled, these Hindus are as much a part of the capital's landscape as the cattle they seek to protect.

Agitation for a ban on "cow slaughter" is basically religious, for the cow and the bull are the most sacred of animals to the Hindu. The movement popularly refers to "cow slaughter," but its aim is protection of all cattle.

The movement has worked up so much political steam that Prime Minister Nehru has been forced to proceed cautiously on what he considers one of India's most needed economic reforms—the improvement of the country's cattle.

Hindu orthodoxy opposes any cattle slaughter, even of diseased and aged animals, on the grounds sacred beasts should be allowed natural death.

Hindu beliefs forbid the eating of beef, provide a role for cows in temple ceremonies and require the cow be worshipped in every home. Sacred cattle are allowed to wander freely through city streets, where they often snarl traffic and upset bazaar stands.

Hinduism depends on cattle, perhaps more than any other country, as an important prop of the economy. With much of India agricultural and minus mechanization, the bull plows fields or hauls loads to markets. Dairy products provide millions of Indian vegetarians their only protein.

The government figures there are some 220 million cows and bulls, or more than one for every two Indians, in the country.

Kalamazoo Hospital Nurse Murdered By Mental Patient, 18

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—State police said today a patient at the Kalamazoo State Mental Hospital has confessed the sex slaying of 21-year-old nurse Marilyn Kraal Friday night.

The patient is Louis Maurice Smith, 18, committed to a Kalamazoo state hospital from Parchment, a Kalamazoo suburb.

State Police Detective Chief Vic Beck said Smith confessed before taking a scheduled lie detector test.

Lured To Basement

Beck said Smith admitted luring the girl to a basement hydrotherapy room on the pretext of regaining a pack of playing cards he had left there.

He told Beck the girl volunteered to accompany him to the room to recover the cards.

Beck said Smith told him he killed Marilyn after the assault.

Then took her key ring and flushed it down a toilet. Afterwards, he locked the door to the room, Beck said Smith related.

Marilyn's body was found in a search after other nurses became alarmed at her failure to keep a supper date with them.

Coroner Horace Cobb said the tall, blonde nurse had been criminally assaulted and then strangled with a red, hospital issue necktie.

Most of the girl's clothing had been ripped off, but state police said there were no signs of a struggle in the laboratory where her body was found. The only outward sign of violence was the girl's bruised throat.

Police said her assailant may have taken the keys and locked the girl in the laboratory to prevent discovery of her body.

Riley Stewart, Kalamazoo police detective, said Miss Kraal may have gone to be with Miss Kraal's possession yesterday also was missing. The keys gave access to several hospital laboratories and wards.

Police said her assailant may have taken the keys and locked the girl in the laboratory to prevent discovery of her body.

Judge Edward T. Kane said lack of evidence forced him to dismiss the case against the 68-year-old defendant.

At the same time he accused McKeighan of "being part and parcel of this whole deal." And in a stinging lecture which ended the trial, Kane told McKeighan that "in society you cannot hold your head up any more than a worm that crawls out from under a log . . ."

McKeighan was charged with conspiracy to violate state gambling laws in being the payoff man between Macomb County gamblers and police officers who allegedly took bribes in return for protecting gamblers.

McKeighan fled to Florida eight years ago after indictment by a grand jury. Until he returned voluntarily to Michigan last August, he avoided extradition on the ground he was unable to travel because of a serious heart ailment.

"This case has been a strain upon the history of this county and a sore spot in the state," Judge

Oregon Democrat Holds 2,027 Lead

PORLAND, Ore. (AP)—Democrat Richard L. Neuberger of Portland held a 2,027 vote lead over his Republican opponent, Sen. Guy Cordon, as tabulating of Oregon's crucial U.S. Senate election continued yesterday.

The vote was 283,258 for Cordon and 285,285 for Neuberger according to unofficial but double-checked returns from 2,496 of the state's 2,496 precincts.

The three outstanding precincts do not have 50 votes among them. Cordon has refused to concede the election to Neuberger. The veteran senator said he would await an official canvass of the tally expected to be completed about Dec. 1.

Sheppard Trial Lags; Six-Day Week Suggested

By WILLIAM NEWKIRK

CLEVELAND (AP)—A judge's threat of a six-day week for the Sheppard murder trial faced defense lawyers today because of their long cross examination of the state's first witness.

Drop Reported In Employment

Employment in the Delta and Schoolcraft county area increased in commercial fishing and in temporary projects in the food canning industry, according to the October report of the Michigan Employment Security Commission. The hiring, however, was offset by layoffs in the timber industry and service establishments.

Wage and salary employment dropped by 100 since August and is 1,100 below the year ago level when construction of the oil pipeline was underway and shipments of iron ore were at a high level.

Labor market conditions in Dickinson county remained practically unchanged, according to the report. Non-farm wage and salary employment is 300 below that of one year ago.

In Menominee county, a seasonal decline in the manufacture of school seating and the close of the bean canning season cut wage and salary employment by about 100. Completion of highway construction will probably idle about 50 more. These workers will be absorbed by the sugar refining industry.

The overall picture for the Upper Peninsula discloses the usual seasonal trends. Industries turned downward in September. Completion of some construction projects, in addition to termination of tourist and resort activities, reduced employment by about 500 since mid-August. On September 15, approximately 74,100 workers were employed in non-agricultural industries compared with 74,600 a month before that and 79,100 a year ago.

Active applications for employment on file in the Escanaba employment office which looks after the Delta and Schoolcraft areas, show a total of 676, of which 120 are female applicants and 258 veterans.

Wage and salary employment may decline by approximately 1,400 during the next two months in the Upper Peninsula as seasonal factors take effect, says the report. However some employment gains are anticipated. Copper mining may hire 300 workers to meet increased production requirements. In addition, lumber and wood products firms are expected to increase payrolls by 700.

Grover Dillman Heads 1955 Michigan Week

The second annual Michigan Week, the event intended to turn seven million Michigan residents into aggressive salesmen for their state, will be celebrated May 15-21, 1955.

General chairman of the 1955 Michigan Week will be Dr. Grover C. Dillman, president of Michigan College of Mining and Technology at Houghton in the Upper Peninsula.

This announcement is made jointly by Walker L. Cisler, president of Greater Michigan Inc. and Dan Gerber, chairman of the Michigan Economic Development Commission. These two organizations were the principal sponsors of the first Michigan Week last spring and have since voted to make Michigan Week an annual event. Mr. Cisler is president of The Detroit Edison Co. Mr. Gerber is president of Gerber's Baby Foods, Fremont.

Two Weeks Later

Schools, churches, clubs, labor and business groups and all other organizations are urged to set aside the third week of May on their calendars and start planning immediately the special activities that will make their members and others know more and think more about Michigan and the communities in which they live.

Next year's Michigan Week will be two weeks later than this year's, in an attempt to have it late enough for communities to hold outdoor events without difficulty but early enough to avoid conflict with school graduation activities. Several parts of the state had snow during Michigan Week this year. Spring was chosen over Fall in the first place at the suggestion of the state Tourism Council so that Michigan Week would be of most use in attracting summer visitors to the state encouraging communities to spruce up for summer.

Walker Cisler said:

"We are exceedingly fortunate that Dr. Dillman has accepted the Michigan Week chairmanship. His leadership in Michigan Week will demonstrate that all parts of our great state are united for their common good and greater prosperity. Few men could do as much as Grover Dillman to cement fine relationships among the various sections of Michigan and to inspire the people of our state to work together."

Distinguished Education

Dr. Dillman, one of the nation's distinguished engineers and educators, became president of Michigan Tech. in 1935 after serving several terms as state highway commissioner. Since he became president the school has more than tripled its enrollment. Dr. Dillman is a director of Greater Michigan Inc., a past president of the Michigan Engineering Society and is a past state chairman of the March of Dimes.

Mr. Gerber said:

"Michigan Week 1954 marked the beginning of a new era of pride and enthusiasm for Michigan on the part of Michigan people. We who helped get Michigan Week started had no idea how it would be received. Its success surpassed our best hopes. Michigan Week is already bringing big returns to Michigan in many ways. It will mean much to Michigan for the rest of the country to see Michigan people working together as they will be working in the coming months to prepare for the 1955 Michigan Week."

DR. G. C. DILLMAN

NCA Recommended For Chicago-Detroit Run

In an initial decision issued today in Washington, D. C., Curtis C. Henderson, Civil Aeronautics Board examiner, recommended that North Central Airlines be awarded the local service route between Chicago and Detroit.

Intermediate cities on the route are South Bend, Ind., and Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Jackson and Ann Arbor, Mich., with Ann Arbor served through Willow Run airport, Detroit. (Both Detroit and Chicago are major terminal points on North Central Airlines route north to Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.)

Examiner Henderson also recommended suspension of American Airlines service at the intermediate cities. American now schedules a single round-trip flight daily over the local service route.

Besides providing these cities the type of airline service they require, North Central Airlines claims many operational advantages in linking Detroit and Chicago. Chicago has been the southern terminus of the airline's system since the company inaugurated service in February, 1946. And Detroit has been the eastern terminus since April 4, 1953, when North Central extended service to Detroit, Lansing and Grand Rapids, Mich., to provide the state's first scheduled inter-peninsular airline service. Chicago and Detroit flights to the Upper Peninsula are routed via Green Bay, Wis.

Company officials assert that closing the gap between Chicago and Detroit with a direct route would provide for more efficient utilization of aircraft and personnel and greater flexibility in

Dog From Newhouse Kennel Wins Ribbon

A first blue ribbon was won in a recent American Kennel Club sponsored show at Newton, Iowa, by Ramona's Corky Royal, a cocker spaniel from the Contented Woods kennels of Mrs. Nancy Newhouse, Bay View, she has been informed by the dog's owners.

Ramona's Corky Royal was whelped Aug. 25, 1952, and is the son of Gold Comet and Miss June II. He was purchased in April, 1953, by Jack and Ramona Lucia, who at that time resided here. Lucia is a consulting engineer and was employed in work at the Esplaner scheduling, resulting in better service to all the Michigan cities.

Watch Your Power Dollar

People of Escanaba, be mindful of your pocketbook today as well as your future—READ THIS CAREFULLY. You have been offered a contract by a substantial and reliable Michigan Corporation, THE ALGER-DELTA COOPERATIVE ELECTRIC ASSOCIATION...

The proposed contract offers WHOLESALE POWER to your municipal electric utility. Rates being offered represent actual costs and will be made available to the City of Escanaba at a lower cost than has yet been estimated under any other alternative solution to your power problem.

The power which you are offered is firm power and on the basis of estimated demands prepared by Consoer-Townsend engineers. The Stanley Engineering Co. and the staff of your electric utility, is adequate to meet the needs of the City of Escanaba for the duration of the contract.

The proposed contract provides 10,000 kilowatts of generating capacity for the City of Escanaba without requiring any capital investment on the city's part for such generating capacity. The greatest demand yet reached by the City of Escanaba was 5,702 kilowatts. From this it can be seen that the capacity which the electric cooperative offers is very nearly twice that demand. This should be more than adequate to meet the city's needs for the 10 year period of the proposed contract.

Editorials—U.S. Atoms-For-Peace Plan Can Be Factor In Easing Tensions

THIS United States proposal for peaceful use of atomic power and the expressed willingness of this government to assist other nations to that end may develop into the most potent force for world understanding that has come about in recent years.

It is significant that the United States proposal, first outlined by President Eisenhower a year ago and spelled out in more detail yesterday by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., does not preclude any country, including Russia, from joining in the plan.

As President Eisenhower indicated when the plan was first proposed it is a starting point for better understanding between all of the nations of the world. If these nations find that they can work together for

H. Allen Smith lists high in the annals of famous practical jokers Lord Halifax, who once shared a first-class railway compartment on a journey to Bath with two prim, frozen-faced spinsters—strangers not only to himself, but presumably to each other. When the train plunged into a long tunnel, joker Halifax hastily kissed the back of his hand several times—and very loudly, too, accompanying the smack with appropriate "oohs" and "aahs" as ecstasy. When the train reached its destination, Lord Halifax made a sweeping bow and inquired, "To which of you delectable ladies am I indebted for the titillating incident in the tunnel?"

What The Bible Says About Character

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

What the Bible says about character is not found in one place but is all through the great Book, from Genesis to Revelation.

After its supreme theme, and the greatest of all—the message concerning the character of God, and the glorious Gospel of His grace—it is the Bible's greatest theme of man's relationship to God and to his fellow man.

Now are these greatest themes of the Bible in any sense separated or unrelated. Jesus said to His disciples: "Be ye perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect." It is in being godly, like God, that man attains his highest and best.

This close linking of man and his God is the distinctive quality of Judaism and Christianity. So far as I am aware, no other religion and no other expression of religion among men has had that quality.

The typical cry of the Hebrew saint was: "Search me, O God, and know my heart, try me, and know my thoughts; and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting." (Psalm 139).

There is the truth and the way; and the blessing and the hope of the world is that so many have lived and worked in the spirit of that Psalmist, seeking above all to know God's will, and to follow God's way, conscious that God sees them with His all-seeing eye, responsive only to truth and right. That is faith: that is character.

When that ancient Hebrew writer declared that God had made man in His own image, it might equally have been said that man was conceiving of God in his human image; but either way it was a profound conception.

It laid the foundation for all that was sublime in the religion of the Hebrew saints, prophets, and poets. With such a conception of God as the supreme perfection of all that man saw in the promptings of his own soul, man's aspiration toward that Perfect Being became, at least in the truly saintly, the one great goal of life and character.

The power of that self-discipline, as the fundamental element in character became expressed in a spiritual daring the like of which has seldom been equaled elsewhere in religious experience.

The typical cry of the Hebrew saint was:

"Search me, O God, and know my heart, try me, and know my thoughts; and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting." (Psalm 139).

There is the truth and the way; and the blessing and the hope of the world is that so many have lived and worked in the spirit of that Psalmist, seeking above all to know God's will, and to follow God's way, conscious that God sees them with His all-seeing eye, responsive only to truth and right. That is faith: that is character.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The Republicans have weathered their worst storm—an off-year election in their mid-term—and have come through far better than was generally expected.

There was no landslide for the Democrats, as was being widely predicted a month ago. Narrow majorities for the winners were the rule rather than the exception.

The Republicans could have won this election by a comfortable majority in both houses had they begun earlier to size up their weaknesses and had President Eisenhower exercised his influence promptly to bring about harmony in his party. For the election has proved that in political campaigns it is costly to indulge in the luxury of factional fighting.

SEES GOP SWEEP IN 1956

But, despite the setbacks, it may be said even this early that there is a good prospect of a Republican sweep in 1956 in both the presidency and Congress. For an examination of the long-range trend will show that it has not departed materially from the Republicans and can be recovered when a popular personality is at the head of the ticket. It seems certain that Mr. Eisenhower will be drafted by the Republican national convention in 1956 to run again if he shows a reluctance to announce his candidacy.

What happened in the congressional elections can best be outlined as follows:

1. Local issues predominated. No national trend on any single issue was visible.

2. Coal was a strategic influence. The flight of the coal miners who were out of work affected the Republicans adversely in Kentucky, West Virginia, Illinois and Pennsylvania. It not only cost the Republicans three Senate seats but some House seats as well.

3. The CIO, by spending hundreds of thousands of dollars of workingmen's funds for political purposes, defeated Senator Ferguson, Republican, in Michigan and played a part in several House contests on which the union political leaders concentrated their efforts.

FLANDERS CAUSED SPLIT

4. Senator Flanders of Vermont, by his fight on Senator McCarthy, cost the Republican party many hundreds of thousands of votes in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the Middle West. The Vermont senator helped to widen an already bad split inside the party. Then the Watkins committee report, which came along in the middle of the campaign, added to the bad feeling on the part of the McCarthy supporters. While McCarthy himself was hardly mentioned on the stump, the anti-Communist issue did play a vital part in some of the races.

There are reports, for instance, that tens of thousands of persons—estimated by some at 250,000—sent postcards to Senator Ives, who was running for the governorship of New York, warning him that they would not vote for him unless he announced his opposition to the censure motion against McCarthy pending in the Senate. Ives was defeated by less than 15,000. There was a huge stay-at-home vote in New York state.

5. The most insidious influence in the campaign began to be noticed several months ago when the so-called liberals insisted on a showdown fight with the faction of the Republican party to which the late Senator Taft belonged. While they were theoretically right in urging a clear-cut assertion by the President on various policies, they were wrong in forcing the cleavage as far as they did. It resulted in many thousands of protest votes in nearly every senatorial contest.

6. If ever a united Republican party was needed, it was in the 1954 elections. The factionalism worked both ways. Many of the "Citizens for Eisenhower" didn't support Meek, the Republican nominee in Illinois, and many of the pro-Taft or pro-McCarthy Republicans either refused to vote in New Jersey or wrote in a protest with so-called Hartley ballots or else voted for the Democratic nominee. This was an unhealthy condition which, with a little attention by the White House to practical politics a few months ago, could have been avoided.

7. A Democratic majority in the House means the Republicans will look to their opponents to assume responsibility there. It is an awkward position for the Democrats to be in, because they will be called upon to formulate programs of their own and to cooperate with the executive or be charged with political sabotage.

8. Maurice Chevalier is preparing to celebrate his 55 years on the stage with 55 one-man recitals at the Champs Elysees theater. Proceeds of the first performance will go to the old actors' home which he founded 20 years ago.

Proof that Chevalier is still the darling of his public is seen in the heavy advance bookings for his show.

PARIS—(NEA)—Time has been kind to Maurice Chevalier, France's uncrowned music-hall king now planning a return to the U. S. Despite his 66 years, his silver gray hair and wrinkles, he has remained the same dynamic, engaging person which between two wars made him the favorite French entertainer practically throughout the world.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—This is how Budget Director Rowland Hughes sums up the effects of the Eisenhower administration's $14 billion cuts on Federal Government expenditures since Inauguration day, 1953, as they affect the average individual.

"On a per capita basis," says Hughes, "it means that we have reduced expenditures from the $486 per person proposed for last year by the past administration to $390 per person this year. This is an expenditure reduction of $96 a year for each man, woman and child in the nation, or about $400 for an average family."

DEFENSE Secretary Charles E. Wilson isn't too bitter, and secretly he may be getting quite a kick out of the furor caused by his bison-dog speech in Detroit.

He has been asking for the originals of political cartoons that lampooned his remark. One cartoonist who obliged autographed his drawing, "From one hound dog to another!" before sending it on. Wilson got a good laugh out of the crack.

UNKINDEST CUT of the week in Washington is a reference to ex-Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, now chief dispenser of American aid to foreign governments as "the oldest youth in America." Deer Gun Death Case Unraveled

PORT HURON (P)—Eleven months of detective work have resulted in the arrest of a Muir man in the gunfire death of a deer hunter last Dec. 1 near Mio.

Claude Eldridge Sr., 60, of Muir, was arrested Thursday on a warrant charging him with "careless use of a hunting weapon without intent to kill." The charge carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

Eldridge was arrested in the death of Russell Mericle, 29, of Avoca, found shot to death in the woods near Mio after having gone hunting alone.

The dead man's family pleaded with authorities to unravel the shooting. Detective Sgt. Harry Biggs of the Bay City state police post, Sheriff William Nepp of Oscoda County, and Deputy Sheriff Ralph Schler of St. Clair County began a cooperative effort.

First they checked hunter registrations of those who went into the woods where Mericle was found. A check of hunters carried them over much of the state.

Finally, the three officers eliminated all but a party of six hunters, some of whom were among the first on the scene when Mericle's body was found.

All agreed to take lie detector tests. However, Schlee said Eldridge balked when called upon to undergo the test, but denied he could have been the one who fired the shot that killed Mericle.

The three officers re-checked all their clues, Schlee said, and the warrant followed. Biggs said ballistics tests indicated the fatal bullet came from Eldridge's gun.

Smog In Los Angeles Changes Professor's Coral Tie To Purple

LOS ANGELES (P)—If James Sharpless had followed his wife's advice and left that coral-hued tie on the rack it might still be part of his wardrobe.

But now the garish cravat which Mrs. Sharpless thought was too "wild" for classes at the University of Southern California is in a brown bottle in the university's chemical engineering department.

Dr. Joseph Smatko will make an extensive study of it to learn why it turned from coral to a bluish purple while Sharpless was walking from one class to another.

The professor said smog changed the tie's color. He's going to contact the tie manufacturer, learn what chemicals were used in the dye, then dip the tie in various synthetic smog substances and try to isolate the chemical compound that caused the color transformation.

"West opened a spade, and East cashed the two top cards. He turned a low heart, and West took the queen and returned a heart to East's ace. East then led back a spade, and South ruffed with the ten of diamonds. West, instead of overruffing, discarded a club.

"South now tempted the fates further by laying down the ace of trumps and continuing with the queen. West was happy to take the trick, and equally happy to lead back the nine of diamonds, forcing out South's jack. South saw his danger and shifted to clubs, but West came up with the ace and drew South's last trump.

Both boys were dismissed from the hospital yesterday, but will remain in Detroit for a while and will be treated in the hospital's out-patient clinic.

This old picture of lumbering operations at Grand Marais shows the Cook, Curtis and Miller sawmill which produced 10 million feet of lumber annually.

Grand Marais Was Busy Lumber Community; Population Over 3,000

GRAND MARAIS — After more than half a century the one time thriving, busy lumber town of Grand Marais, which by all standards should have died out with the end of the lumber boom is still existing.

In 1884 when Grand Marais was made a harbor of refuge and the village plot of East Grand Marais laid out the lumbering was already started. Most of the village then centered around East Bay and it was here that the white pine was first exploited, hauled in from many miles distance and shipped out by boat. One of the first logging concerns was the Randolph Co. for which Randolph Lake and territory was named. They put their own tracks down to haul the logs to the "Pull Up" River. That too, in the process of pulling up the logs is how the river derived that name.

This company almost went broke trying to construct a canal to float the logs down the river and into the bay. Many of the logs can still be found piled up in the mouth. When the canal proved successful the logs were reloaded and hauled to Grand Marais Creek, then dammed up and floated into the bay. Some were even floated down from as far as Harvey Creek and many of the dams made for that purpose are still in evidence.

150,000 Feet Daily

The C. Coon Pine Mill and the Gamble and Hall Co. were among the first of the lumber mills. In the early 1890's the McFadden Lumber Co. began their business, shipping out huge square pine timbers, measuring anywhere from three feet in diameter to 30 feet in length. This was called "cork pine," being of the very finest. All these timbers were hewed by hand. One of the top "hewers" of the day, Sam Viellette at 95 years of age is still living here. Most of these timbers were exported. The McFadden Co. employed around 600 men in about five camps scattered around east and south of East Bay.

The men and teams would work around the clock to haul in the logs. These were piled up on the ice and in the spring loaded by booms on the lumber boats for shipping. In 1894, in what could be called the start of the town's boom the Alger Smith Lumber Company extended the Manistique Railroad into Grand Marais and put up a large mill. In a 24 hour operation (two 12 hour shifts) the mill produced 150,000 feet of lumber, all number one pine, employing around 300 men. All this lumber was shipped out by boat, with as many as 25 barges waiting at once for loading.

One of the biggest camps was the "Baker Branch" or what is now known as the "Adams Trail". One passenger train a day was operated. The Alger Smith Co. cut some cedar, mostly for use as telephone poles and railroad ties and also some hemlock. Hardwood lumbering was set up in 1905 when the Cook, Curtis Miller Co. built their mill. The old boiler room of this mill is still standing down in East Grand Marais and is called the "echo house" by all the small fry. This company hauled most of their timber from around Curtis, then shipped it from here by boat, producing around ten million feet a year. There was also shingle mill and a veneer plant operating during that time.

Population Over 3,000

During the years of these large scale lumbering operations the town itself grew and at the very peak boasted a population of over 3,000. The village extended itself into what is now called West Town with the main street, or business section consisting of several saloons, (the number has varied anywhere between 15 and 30 according to stories handed down) to large general store.

The Catholic Church, a log cabin begun by Fr. Mlynarczyk and finished by Fr. Sutter erected on land purchased from the Snyder Lumber Co. was the first religious establishment. This was in 1895. It was followed in 1896 by the Episcopal and Methodist, in 1898 by

General Lester J. Maitland Hopes To Be A Flying Pastor

(Editor's Note — The subject of the following article, Brig. Gen. Lester J. Maitland, Michigan Director of Aeronautics and Civil Defense, spoke recently in Escanaba and has expressed the desire to serve in the Upper Peninsula when he enters the Episcopal ministry.)

By ALLEN SHOENFIELD
In The Detroit News

LANSING—From flying general to flying priest is a logical, almost inevitable step for Lester J. Maitland, Michigan's director of civil defense and the Department of Aeronautics.

Brig. Gen. Maitland, at 56, retired as colonel in the regular Army after rising in the ranks from private, a pioneer in military aviation, World War II combat veteran and holder of a number of coveted decorations, intends to enter the Episcopal clergy within a year if he is found acceptable.

He is eager to drop his military rank and $11,000 salary as director of aeronautics for the title and subsistence of a mission priest in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, the diocese of Northern Michigan under the Rt. Rev. Herman R. Page.

"I will go wherever I am sent by the bishop," Maitland said today. "But I have asked to be assigned to the poorest mission in northern Michigan, where the need is greatest and where I may be confronted at once with a serious challenge."

Prepared By Past

Maitland is tall, ramrod straight, powerfully-built and carries the air of authority of a former bomber group commander. But he has a quiet sense of humor.

Maitland laughed when reminded that, only two days after it was revealed the United States had a super H-bomb 2,400 times more devastating than the Hiroshima A-bomb, he had resigned as civil defense director and was quoted as saying, "The time to pray is now!"

Looking back over the busy years to 1917 when, just graduated from the Milwaukee High School, he had enlisted at 18 in the aviation section of the U. S. Signal Corps, Maitland said:

"I see now that nearly everything I have done, everything that has happened to me, was preparing me for the tasks ahead.

"I can hardly wait to start. I know that my ambition to enter holy orders is at least 25 years old. I have been identified with the church for that long. I have belonged to the ushers' guild, attending men's conferences and participated in social and welfare activities. Of course, the layman can serve God and church in many capacities, but I felt I had to do more.

Had Mixed Motives

"When I told my desire to Dr. George R. Selway, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Lansing, he said, 'I am not surprised. I have been expecting you to come, for months.'

"I suppose, really, that my motives were mixed.

"Certainly, I was seeking peace of mind, as most of us are in these troubled times. I found it in the church. I became a lay leader but felt myself unworthy to aspire higher. I never felt greater satisfaction with any honor that ever came to me than when I had passed all the tests and really searching examinations and was admitted to become a postulant.

"I have been trained from youth to handle men, to engage in large-scale planning and to serve as administrator. I believed that the church might have some use for this experience. I should like to assist Bishop Page with tithing. He is a man overburdened with cares, heading a diocese covering one-third of the land area of Michigan.

"When I learned to fly so many years ago—I still hold pilot's license No. 88, one of the earliest issued—I little thought this could be placed at the service of the church. But if my ambitions are attained, I should like to buy a small airplane and use it in reaching remote and isolated communities. But his studies have been made more difficult because of that.

In spite of his official duties, he has risen at 5 a. m. daily for more than a year to pursue his studies. As a postulant, he may bury the dead and conduct services. He has served as secretary of the vestry and assisted in reading the lessons, at St. Paul's. Eventually he may become a "candidate" then a deacon, finally an ordained priest.

"I have no hope of becoming a bishop," he said. "But I may have 10 or 15 good years ahead of me—and, if I have, they will be spent in the service of God. No man can serve two masters and I have chosen mine."

Maitland was silent for awhile, lost in thought. Then he said:

Machine To Wash, Wax Potatoes May Spur U.P. Potato Industry

By J. R. LOWELL

Insistence by American housewives on cleanliness and neatness may eventually have a distinct bearing on Upper Michigan's progress and prosperity. At least such is the firm belief of an Escanaba business man who has given considerable thought to the matter.

Al Gearst, manager of the Northwest Fruit Company of Escanaba, holds to this belief and feels so strongly about it that he is using his influence to promote a certain type of machinery in the hope that its widespread use will bring stability to one of Upper Michigan's principal farm crops—potatoes.

That Upper Michigan raises potatoes that are the equal (and in some ways, the superior) of potatoes grown anywhere else, is generally conceded. And with the employment of scientific farming methods and good productive soil, phenomenal yields are being produced. That should spell prosperity for the area; but alas, such is often not the case.

Stiff Competition

The trouble is that there are other large producing areas—notably Maine, Minnesota, Idaho and California—that produce splendid potatoes on scales much the same as our own.

Upper Michigan has the advantage of being closest to two of the best potato markets in the country—Chicago and Detroit—but for some reason this area's potatoes are outsold by these far away competitors. Why?

Because Maine, Idaho and California growers are selling cleaned, sterilized, waxed and neatly packaged potatoes. They even outsell Michigan potatoes at premium prices.

Washed Potatoes Vs. Unwashed

Mr. Gearst feels that he has the answer to the problem. It is a washing machine.

This particular washing machine is not at all like the appliances found so indispensable in the average home. It is built solely for the purpose of washing, drying and waxing potatoes.

Now washing machines for this purpose are not necessarily new. They have been on the market for many years. But they have heretofore had the same drawbacks—they used huge quantities of water and the silt from the wash residue made the area where the washing took place look like the tailings of a placer mine.

Mr. Gearst is interested in a machine that has practically eliminated these two very undesirable features. The Northwest Fruit Company recently acquired one of these new type machines for the purpose of marketing the potatoes it wholesales in the local area.

God's Handiwork

"He looks down from the skyways and see how infinitely small are men and their works and how little enduring while the vastness and agelessness of the mountains testify to God's handiwork."

Maitland said that his wife and two daughters are in thorough sympathy with his aims.

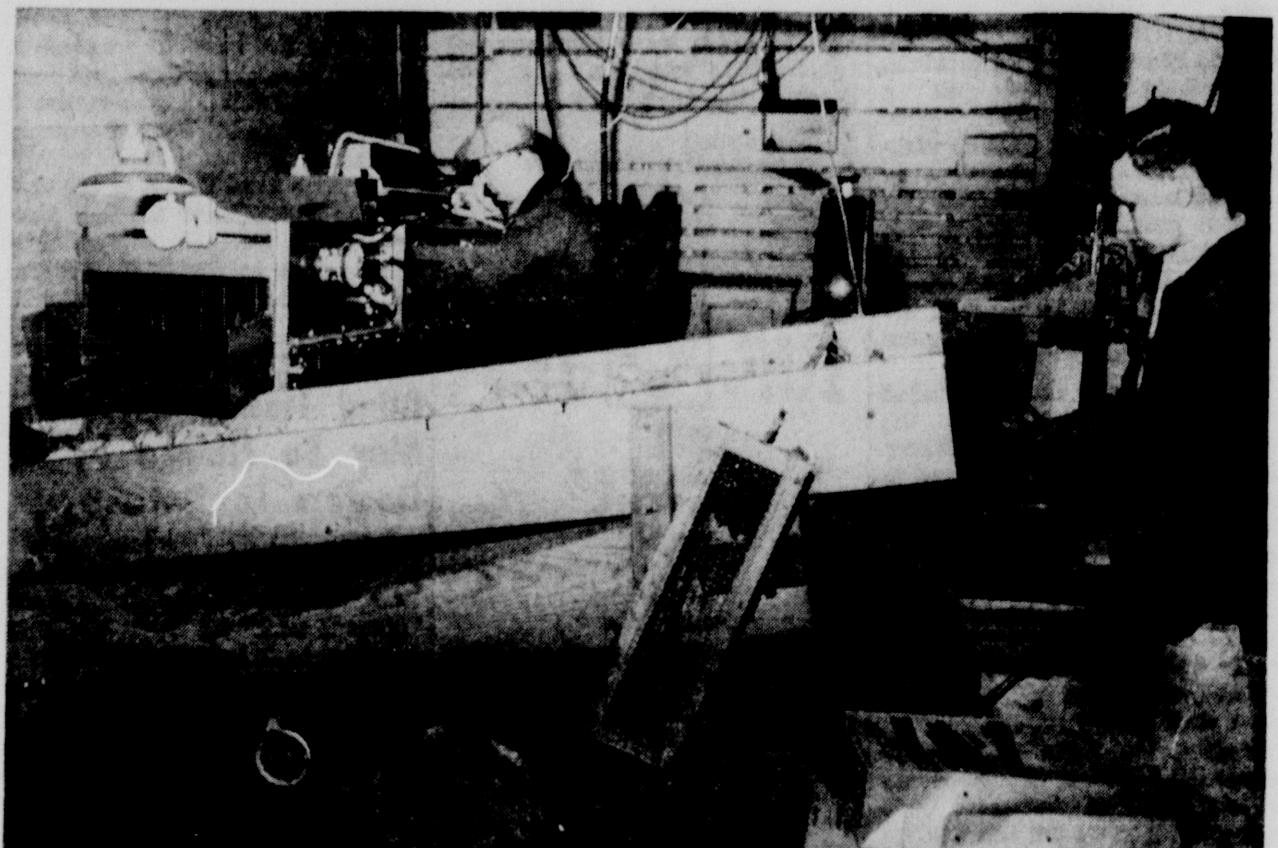

He acknowledged that a long, hard road lies ahead of him, harder than that confronting younger men entering a three-year seminary curriculum. The church found it possible, in Maitland's case, to waive knowledge of Greek, useful for New Testament interpretation. But his studies have been made more difficult because of that.

In spite of his official duties, he has risen at 5 a. m. daily for more than a year to pursue his studies. As a postulant, he may bury the dead and conduct services. He has served as secretary of the vestry and assisted in reading the lessons, at St. Paul's. Eventually he may become a "candidate" then a deacon, finally an ordained priest.

Joseph Lequia Completing 35 Years As Hospital Technician

Two important anniversaries will be celebrated during the next week by Joseph N. Lequia, 417 S. 12th St., well-known x-ray technician at St. Francis Hospital. Tuesday, Nov. 9, the Lequia will celebrate their 36th wedding anniversary, and the next day, Nov. 10, he will observe his 35th anniversary as technician at the local hospital.

Mr. Lequia attended the parochial and public schools of Escanaba, and he married the former Rosanna Pepin of Ishpeming at Waco, Tex., Nov. 9, 1918. The couple have nine children, three of which followed the medical field.

The beginning of Lequia's career as an x-ray technician actually started when he enlisted in the medical service of the U. S. Army in 1917. First, he was stationed in the eye, ear and throat department at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., and upon promotion to hospital Sergeant at Camp McArthur, Waco, Tex., he was attached to the x-ray department of the base hospital, where he received much of his training. After his discharge, he became employed here by the Sister of the Third Order of St. Francis in their x-ray department.

Department Transferred

"X-ray technique, like x-ray equipment, has passed through an evolutionary stage since 1896 to ment which kills all outer blight spores.

The disinfectant and wax applications are effective, but so light that they can scarcely be noticed. The wax is a specially prepared vegetable compound colored just enough to enhance the appearance of the potatoes, hence a rural russet is treated with a brown wax and Irish cobbler with red wax. Very little washing is required should one wish to bake the potato and the customary greasing to assure a tender skin is unnecessary as the wax takes care of that.

Process Described

Six processes are involved before the potatoes are finally packaged. They are dumped into the hopper, carried by chain belt to the washing machine. In the washing machine they are pushed along by the potatoes in back of them over rollers that cause them to revolve. Jets of water and nylon brushes scrub them as they move. From this machine they continue on, rolling over alternate wood and extremely porous rubber rollers. This process helps drain off the surplus water. From there they are run through a matting of very soft rubber saturated with sterilizing solution and then by a similar manner through a waxing solution. They are then run along another elevator to the sacker.

A special pump drains off the wash water in such a way that sediment is left in a sump pan beneath the washing machine. The scrubbing principle calls for comparative light jets of water. This has eliminated the trouble experienced with old type machines where the dirt often caused serious clogging of sewers and use of great amounts of water was necessitated.

To Mr. Gearst's knowledge, this is the only machine of this sort in Upper Michigan, but a number of them are in operation in northern Wisconsin.

It is the product of the Lobe Pump Company of Gasport, N. Y. The one owned by the Northwest Fruit Company cost $2,250.

A number of Upper Michigan potato growers attending the current potato show have expressed great interest in the machine's performance. Mr. Gearst believes that this machine may have a definite bearing on Upper Michigan's success in marketing the fine crop of potatoes it harvests every season.

X-ray films now are coated on both sides, speeding the process a great deal. The latest type also are completely fire proof.

Joseph Lequia at work on x-ray machine at St. Francis Hospital.

At the present time," Mr. Lequia emphasized. "Each year in the past has shown some progress, while the future will undoubtedly continue to progress."

When Lequia first was employed at St. Francis Hospital, the x-ray department and equipment were located in the present nursery on the third floor, near the operating department. Upon the completion of the new wings in 1936, the department was moved and enlarged on the fourth floor in the south wing.

"During those first years, the machines and equipment were somewhat crude and inefficient," he stated. "They were exceedingly susceptible to atmospheric conditions, especially humidity. The photographic glass plates, which were quite breakable, were coated on one side only, making them hard to handle, and they had to be developed in large trays which were rocked to get uniform development. Also slowing the work was the solutions, which had to be poured back into the glass bottles at the end of the day, because they would oxidize and evaporate in the open."

Gas Tubes Unstable

Old type gas tubes were very unstable, and the penetrating rays depended upon the wave length, which would be extremely long if the tube heated quickly, making the penetrating power limited to improper exposure. The second stage in the development of tubes came when the hydrogen tube was discovered. This tube had two chambers to control the hardness or softness of the tube, giving better control over the penetrating power. Shortly after the Coolidge tube was introduced, followed by the auto-transformer control. This tube has a filament which when heated emits electrons in proportion to its temperature, preventing the scattered rays from bouncing off different objects or coming in direct line with the technicians as in the old type open tubes and bowls, which caused many technicians to receive burns or have other harmful effects from over radiation.

This timer is a great help in radiographing the heart and lungs, especially in children where movement plays a big part in taking a good radiograph.

Mr. Lequia has always been interested in the improvements of the x-ray field and has devoted the greater share of his life to this work. He is president of the Upper Michigan X-Ray Society and a member of American X-Ray Technicians Society.

Renewable Home Fuses Save Time And Annoyances

By MR. FIX

Distributed by NEA Service
Blown fuses are a minor nuisance—so “trivial,” in fact, that most home owners seem to take them for granted. Maybe all are aware that a blown fuse is a sign of trouble that could be serious, but only a relatively few do anything about it.

While it's true that fuses occasionally blow even in the best engineered wiring systems, they are apt to be popping on schedule in homes where the wiring is inadequate. And those homes are in the great majority.

It is said that more than 100 million fuses blow every year. It's obvious that somebody's taking a lot of steps to the fuse box, and no steps to remedy the cause.

In a few cases a complete rewiring job may be advisable. In others, the addition of new circuits to distribute the load will be satisfactory. Realizing that new wiring pays for itself in added value of the home, you wonder what's holding people back.

Until they've saved up enough to buy this convenience and security, they can save some time and annoyance by installing one of the latest types of renewable fuses now on the market. These devices add no more capacity to a circuit, but do eliminate several trips to the store to stock up on fuses.

The conventional screw-in plug fuse is made with a small fusible metal strip which is designed to melt or “blow” when overloaded. Once blown it has to be discarded. Renewable fuses can be used at least six times, some of them permanently.

One type, which is of the same size and general appearance as a regular fuse, is made with six fuse strips arranged around a central point like the spokes of a wheel. When one “spoke” blows, a new one is brought into position by turning a knob a short distance to the right.

The same fuse has a small window in the knob, and behind the window a tiny red lamp that blows when the fuse blows, to facilitate identifying the fuse, or finding it in the dark. They're available in 10 to 30-ampere capacities, and cost about 50 cents.

Another type is a miniature circuit breaker, an electromagnetic device which trips a disconnect switch when overloaded. It is simply reset by pushing a small button on the center of its cap, and it's as good as new. In 15 to 30-amp capacities, they cost about $1.50.

Circuit-breaker panels can also be had in sizes ranging from four circuits (about $12) for small houses to 10 circuits (about $28) and larger.

A fourth device is neither a renewable fuse nor a circuit breaker. It consists of two parts, and, when the two are put together, looks and functions like an ordinary fuse.

The difference is in the parts.

All-Season Door Increases Comfort In Any Weather

One modern door can take the place of two older types. Appropriately called the "combination door," it makes use of interchangeable inserts to perform the functions of separate storm and screen doors.

The ponderosa pine "door blank"—the side, top and bottom pieces, the heaviest part of the door—need never be taken off its hinges. The blank serves as a frame for lightweight panels, which are changed according to the season.

When a screen insert is used during warm weather, the door is a screen door. When a glass insert is used during the winter, it's a storm door. Inserts can be changed with ordinary household tools or no tools at all.

Convenience is one big advantage of a ponderosa pine combination door. Changing insets is an easy task. Little storage space is needed for the inset not in use.

Economy is another factor in the combination door's appeal. Roughly equivalent to a door-and-a-half in material and labor needed for manufacture, it costs less than two complete doors.

When a combination door is used as a storm door, the dead air space between it and the regular door serves as insulation, keeping warm air in and cold air out.

This eliminates drafts and reduces fuel consumption. In a house fully equipped with ponderosa pine storm doors and window storm sash, heating costs usually are reduced 15 to 30 per cent.

Combination doors are made in a variety of designs to suit any architectural style and in sizes to fit any doorway. Some types have decorative metal grilles or lower panels. In one variation of the combination door, the screen always stays in place in winter; the storm insert covers the screen on the outside.

WHY PAINT FAILS

One of the common house paint failures is non-drying. Paint will not dry properly if applied too heavily, or if applied to a damp, dirty greasy surface. Before painting, it is important to wash the surface with a detergent, rinse and let dry. Scrape off all loose particles and smooth rough spots with sandpaper.

WORKING FOR EXCELLENCE

A good job well done always earns a heartening feeling for both the doer and the observer.

We expect such a feeling Tuesday night when Manistique High School students present another play at the MHS auditorium. In seasons past the young thespians have presented enjoyable productions and given their parents and others good reason to be proud.

Their striving for excellence reflects a quality which also characterizes the work of many community residents who similarly take pride in a job well done.

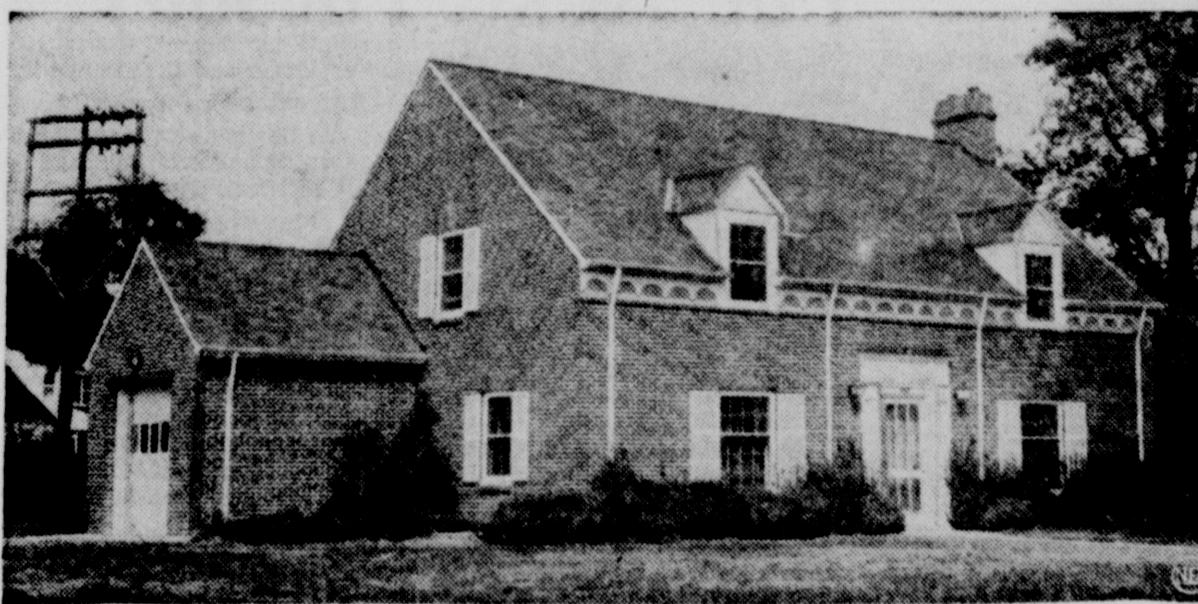

Officers for the club will be elected Dec. 8.

Regulations this year will permit the range master to pick assistants and the president to appoint five to a membership committee.

At the meeting this week Carl (Pike) Johnson and Frank Stemac of Gladstone and Roy Hebert of Escanaba were registered as members. A large attendance was reported for the combined pistol shoot and banquet in the National Guard armory.

It'll Take A Heap Of Something To Make This House A Home

House hunters ask real estate agents if this lovely "home" is for sale.

Wouldn't you like to own the attractive brick residence, above, with its white shutters and well-kept lawn? Lots of people would, and they ask real estate agents if it's for sale. Door-to-door salesmen try to rouse the occupants and one firm even sent a letter, saying they would be glad to reproduce the house on the owner's Christmas cards. All in vain, however. That's because the "dwelling" is no dwelling at all. It's a pumping station for the Mission Hills sewer district of Kansas City, Mo., under the jurisdiction of Johnson County. Inside there are neither family nor furniture — just a mass of pumping machinery and its attendants, as lower picture shows.

From gable to basement, the interior is a maze of pumps, pipes and valves.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (P)—Cleveland fans, who have memories as long as Indians, still are berating Manager Al Lopez via the public prints for not having given that grand campaigner, Bob Feller, a chance to pitch in the World Series.

The more they think about those four straight trouncings by the Giants, the more firmly convinced they become that the disaster would have been averted if the leading winner of ball games can remember. His choice will be Nino Valdes, the large Cuban who made a decision over Ezzard Charles in Florida last spring.

Feller, incidentally, should have at least an even chance of climbing into seventh place among the all-time winning pitchers next year. Only nine more victories added to his present total of 262 would do the trick for the veteran from Van Meter, Iowa.

Cy Young, still hale at 87, leads the pack with an almost unbeatable 311 wins, followed by Walter Johnson with 416, Christy Mathewson and Grover Cleveland Alexander each 373, Eddie Plank 326 and lefty Moses Grove an even 300. Feller's nine victories would vault him over Burleigh Grimes, 270, Eppa Rixey, 266, and Red Ruf-ing, with whom he is tied at 262, into the seventh spot behind Grove.

Rocky Marciano told a Washington, D. C., gathering he thought Archie Moore, the light-heavyweight champion, "might be the best pick at that" to oppose him in his next defense of the unlimited crown.

But the man who will name the next challenger is Al Weill, Rocky's manager, who hasn't made a serious mistake since anyone around the fight business can remember. His choice will be Nino Valdes, the large Cuban who made a decision over Ezzard Charles in Florida last spring.

It could happen that the American League at its emergency meeting here Monday will get a rush of brains to the head and vote to transfer the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City, but don't bet too heavily on it.

Based upon its recent form, a good guess might be that the embroiled body will wrangle and sweat through another session without arriving at a clear cut decision. If this should happen, another inspired guess is that Commissioner Ford Frick will finally step forth with a club in his hand. Up to now he has been waiting for an invitation.

Hoodlum Boxing Cleanup Urged

CHICAGO (P)—Louis Radzienda, national boxing official and member of the Illinois Athletic Commission, Friday suggested a federal ban on professional boxing for at least a year to investigate "alleged hoodlum elements" connected with the sport.

Radzienda, first vice president of the National Boxing Assn., said "hoodlum association" with boxing "has been in existence for a long time, but with more power and strength today."

However, Radzienda said to his knowledge the Illinois commission has had "no difficulty with persons of ill repute or alleged hoodlums," but he added there has been difficulty nationally.

"If nothing is done to clean up the situation as it is today legally," Radzienda said, "then the government should perhaps abolish professional boxing for a year or two, during which time the alleged undesirable characters would diminish their financial resources and be compelled to seek other means of livelihood."

Radzienda issued the statement in commenting on a Chicago Daily News series charging hoodlum invasion of boxing.

Winningest Jockey Has Another Triple

ALBANY, Calif. (P)—Wee Willie Shoemaker, the year's winningest jockey, appears to be making triple victories a fixture of the day at Golden Gate Fields.

Friday, for the fourth straight day, Silent Shoe piloted three mounts to victory, boosting his win total for the year to 364.

He won aboard Your Deal $2.20 in a dead heat with War Reporter $2.50, Wanda Witch $3.50 and N. Gordon $4.80.

Baker Admits He Worked Hard For Win Over Slade

Wings Play Montreal Without Gordie Howe

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (P)—Big Bob Baker had a confession to make in a nationally televised 10 round fight at the Arena.

"It pays to train hard," said the Pittsburgh Negro as he sat on his dressing room table accepting congratulations on his 36th victory in 42 fights.

"I worked hard for this fight. I did two miles of road work every day for two months. I was really in shape and it showed in my performance."

Even the opposing camp, Slade and his manager Al Joyner, had to agree with Baker. Down the hall in Slade's dressing quarters, Joyner said he thought Baker was in the best shape of his career.

"They isolated the big guy for two months. He did nothing but work. He hasn't been in such good shape in four years," said Joyner of Pittsburgh Bob. "He's a good fighter."

As for Slade, the New York State champion was disgusted with his work. He said the seven month layoff hurt him. Slade hadn't fought since last April 26 when he fractured his left hand beating Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson.

Slade simply was overpowered. At 179½, Slade gave away 31½ pounds to Baker. The aggressive New York Negro had to punch at long range and get on his bicycle to keep out of range of the powerful Baker counters.

While Slade was a moving, bobbing, weaving target, Baker kept plodding around the ring, shooting strong right and left hand counters that shook Slade to his toes.

The decision was unanimous with Judge Paul Stilley carding it 6-2-2; Judge Bill Yancey 7-2-1.

What Would You Do If You Had To Serve A Hundred Meals A Minute

AP Newsfeatures

DEARBORN, Mich.—Five hundred meals dished out in five minutes might well be a record. But it's nothing more than daily routine for the industrial caterers who serve 15,000 hungry workers at the Ford Motor Co.'s big Rouge Plant in Dearborn. Food on the run is their business.

When Ford workers leave the production line for a timed-to-the-minute half-hour lunch period, they demand speedy service and good food reasonably priced.

To meet the demand, a catering company serving the plant set up portable cafeterias operating around the clock.

Food is prepared in the catering company's own kitchen, but must be moved to all sections of the plant in all kinds of weather.

Preparation of food for the 11 a.m. lunch hour starts at midnight. Cooks are kept constantly busy turning out thousands of sandwiches, hamburgers, hot dogs and other items.

Watches Weather

As loading time approaches, the food factory foreman keeps an anxious eye on the weather. If the temperature climbs into the 80s and 90s, he knows the factory customer probably will have little appetite and will ignore hot foods. And unless he can stop production in time, gallons of steaming soup will be sent instead to charity institutions.

Menus are not elaborate. The factory worker does not demand an elaborate fare. Many bring their own lunches, and buy only beverage and dessert. The customer is given a choice of 25 items plus 10 varieties of sandwiches, which sell for 15 or 20 cents.

In a 24-hour period, the firm will sell about 2,500 sandwiches.

The caterer's plant manager, B. M. O'Brien, says factory workers are not the big eaters they used to be. In fact, he says, "they only eat about half as much as they used to in the days when we operated the lunch wagons."

Biggest sales day, he says, are Mondays "when there is no food in the refrigerator after the weekend to make sandwiches at home" and on Friday "after payday."

LANSING — Approximately 250,000 Michigan veterans of the Korean War will receive bonuses averaging $270 under an 80 million dollar bonus bond issue approved overwhelmingly by Michigan voters in Tuesday's election.

The proposal, identical to a 270 million World War II bonus voted by the people earlier, will pay Korean veterans $15 per month for overseas service and $10 per month for domestic service.

It will be payable to all veterans who served honorably for at least 60 days between June 27, 1950 and Dec. 31, 1953.

The proposal did not specify a means of financing. Neither did the World War II bonus.

Submitting the previous bonus to the people, the Legislature made a gentlemen's agreement to enact a two cent a pack state cigarette tax to finance that issue. It scheduled the repayment of the new bond issue so that it could be paid by the same tax after the World War II bonus is retired.

The cigarette tax produces approximately 24 million dollars a year, more than enough to meet the annual payments on the original bond issue.

ISABELLA—Dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Soderberg at their home in Danforth Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Nick Bonifas, Mr. and Mrs. Isador Bonifas, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sundin, Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Sundin and Mrs. Felix Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Asplund and children of Cunard spent the weekend at the Arvid Sundin home.

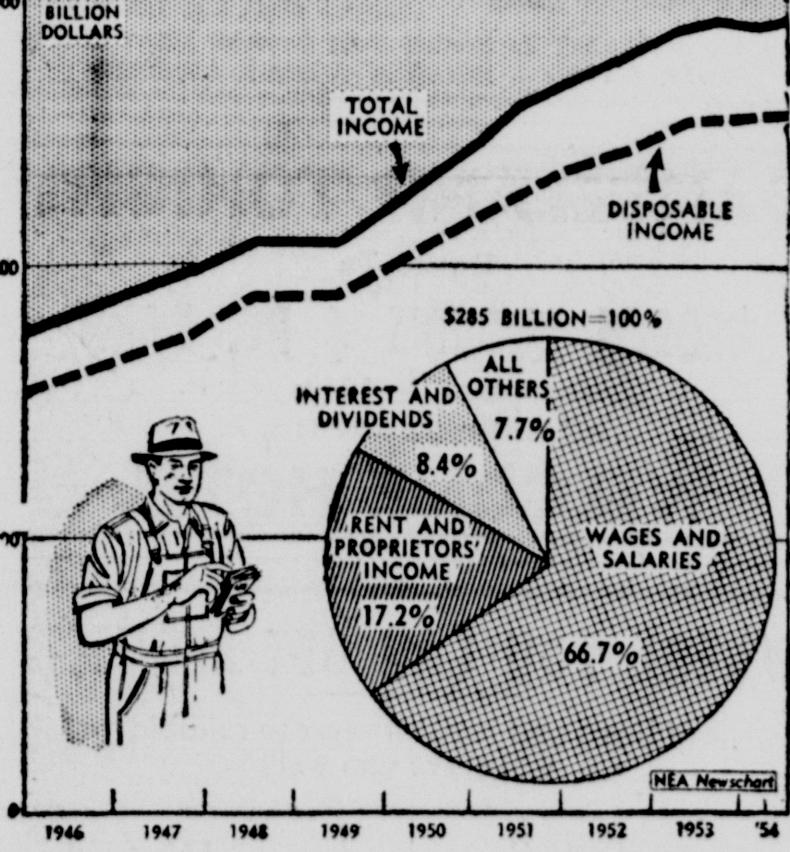

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Soderberg returned Friday from Grayling where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith and Arlene Bonifas.

Remembers His Debts

TOKYO, JAPAN—A Japanese with a good memory emigrated to Brazil 18 years ago.

The emigrant, Ihei Miyata, recently wrote Kanagawa Prefecture authorities asking them to locate two of his creditors in Yokohama. They did and Miyata sent payment in full from São Paulo.

The amounts: 50 yen (about 14 cents) to a rice dealer, and 35 yen (10 cents) to a grocer.

THERE'S MORE DOUGH AROUND—Personal income during the second quarter of 1954 was at an annual rate slightly lower than the peak 1953 figure. However, due to the recent reduction in individual income tax, disposable income (the money people have to save or spend) has kept climbing during the past two years. Disposable income is now some $285 billion, highest in U.S. history. It has increased almost 60 per cent since 1946. Pie chart shows personal income by source for first six months of 1954. Data from National Industrial Conference Board.

Mild Weather Over Weekend

Overcast skies and slightly above freezing temperatures prevailing today, will continue on tomorrow, says Tom Coen, substitute weather observer for S. E. Decker.

Yesterday's high was 41 and the drop during the night was a mild 36. Tomorrow's forecast will be somewhat cooler with a high of 40 and low of 30. Some snow will fall during late afternoon and during the night, but it will be light.

Reports all over the country show a rainless condition and few low temperatures. Sharply in contrast with this was the weather report for Nov. 5 in 1951. The temperature then reached a chill high of 11.

Arab Parliament Gets First Red

By WILTON WYNN

DAMASCUS, Syria, (AP)—Khaled Bekdash is the first Communist ever elected to an Arab Parliament. He polled 16,000 votes, third highest among all candidates in Damascus.

Bekdash ran as an independent, because the Communist party is outlawed in Syria. But there was no doubt about his true colors politically, nor about Bekdash having Russia's blessing. Most Syrian voters know that Bekdash has visited the Soviet Union the last time in 1953. Many Damascenes have heard his voice broadcast over Moscow Radio.

Many Arabs supported Bekdash as a symbol of anti-Westernism. Nearly a million Arab refugees from Palestine blame the United States for loss of their homes, and they applaud anyone opposing the West.

Bekdash's influence in Parliament is expected to be largely negative. He has been appointed to the Foreign Affairs Committee and is expected to join other anti-Western elements in fighting any pro-Western moves by Syria.

The Communist deputy admits the time is not ripe to try to "Sovietize Syria." Certain Syrians believe Bekdash will serve the purpose of keeping the West from taking Syria for granted.

"One Communist in Parliament can't do much harm," they explain. "But he should give America a good scare."

Battle Creek Youth Held In Pistol Death Of Ft. Custer Worker

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—An 18-year-old Battle Creek youth was under custody of the U. S. Attorney General today after pleading guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the death of a Fort Custer mess attendant.

Federal Judge Raymond W. Starr sentenced the youth, Donald F. Thompson, to custody of the attorney general Friday under the Youth Correction Act. Thompson, also mess attendant at Fort Custer, pleaded guilty in the July 7 gunfire death of Louis Crantham, 30, also of Battle Creek.

Witnesses testified Thompson had brandished a .32 calibre revolver which discharged, killing Crantham. Police said Thompson fled the scene but was arrested two hours later.

Footprints Are Clue In Sex Murder Of Norwood, Mass., Girl

NORWOOD, Mass. (AP)—Dist. Atty. Myron Lane said today that a 15-year-old boy has confessed the brutal slaying of Geraldine Anne, also 15, whose body was discovered Friday in a garage near her home.

Police said the girl's beaded necklace had been pulled tightly around her neck and there were bruises on her face and neck. A torn fingernail indicated a struggle and she suffered a brain hemorrhage possibly from a blow on the head, an autopsy disclosed.

The boy re-enacted the crime before a horrified crowd including his own mother.

Lane said the boy admitted after all-night questioning he killed the girl in the cellar of her own home and then dragged the body to the garage.

By RICHARD J. SINNOTT

NORWOOD, Mass. (AP)—A hastily scribbled note, a cigarette butt, a plaster set of footprints and a dismantled auto fender may lead police to the savage sex murderer of pretty 15-year-old Geraldine Anne.

The bruised body, unclad except for her socks, of the vivacious high school sophomore was found Friday on the dirt floor of a two car garage in the back of her home.

Chrysler Loss Heavy During Third Quarter

DETROIT (AP)—Chrysler Corp. officials have disclosed the company lost $12,067,277 in the third quarter of this year.

The heavy loss was reported Friday in the auto firm's report to stockholders on operations the first nine months of 1954.

Despite the loss, directors declared a 75 cent dividend on common stock payable Dec. 11, 1954 to stockholders or record Nov. 16, 1954.

The company said the report reflected in decreased output and increased expenses in the third quarter the "effect of a changeover to new models that is perhaps the most complete and diversified in the history of the automobile business."

Disputes Revived As U. S. Diplomat Davies Gets Fired

Last year, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said the Eisenhower administration "struck out" by not firing Davies.

May Publish Record

The possibility of further controversy in the Davies affair arises from several factors:

1. Davies said he had asked Dulles to make public "the whole record on my case, including my 1950 recommendations that we seek a preventive showdown with the Soviet Union." This was the first hint that he had made such a proposal.

2. It appeared probable that the Foreign Service Journal, a magazine published by foreign service officers, would also ask publication of the record on the ground that the Dulles announcement yesterday did not make the issues clear for the future guidance of U.S. diplomats.

Also asking publication was former Ambassador George F. Kennan, a prominent career diplomat, whom Dulles retired last year in consequence of differences over policy. Kennan called Davies' dismissal "ill advised."

3. Democratic party leaders, returning to power in the next Congress, have indicated they intend to investigate security firings of the Eisenhower administration. The Davies dismissal falls into that category.

Davies did not explain what he meant by his reference to recommendations for a "preventive showdown" with Russia.

However, it was learned that as a member of the State Department policy planning staff in 1950 he had made such a proposal in a paper which was never seriously considered for government policy.

Talked Too Much

While State Department Press Officer Henry Suydam declined to elaborate on Dulles' announcement, a letter Davies wrote to the special board after he had appeared before it may serve to shed some light on matters which were considered.

The letter dealt with Davies' China activities in the waning years of World War II when a great argument was in progress among American officials over what should be done to increase China's military effectiveness against Japan and to assure a China friendly to the United States.

The Davies letter indicated one of the complaints against him was that he had talked too freely with American newsmen in China about his policy ideas. He argued that his comments to these reporters were "sober, discrete, and moderate."

He also said his contacts with Communists—which apparently became an issue in the security proceedings—were developed "with the knowledge of my superiors and for the purpose of obtaining information."

At another point, Davies' letter indicated he was accused of having had contacts with persons about whom there was "derogatory information" in government security files. He challenged the accuracy of much of this information and said further that a foreign service officer "is not officially informed what contacts are unsatisfactory."
